Various Roles.

Three Others and Hurt
Several.

Eugene Schuler, 65, for more than forty years an actor in vaudeville and burlesque, was killed yesterday by a motor truck at Fulton street and South Portland avenue, Brooklyn, while on his way to a booking office in Manhattan, where he intended to try to get another engagement in vaudeville. His last stage engagement was as a yodeler.

For more than a year Schuler, who on the stage was known as Gene Mack, had been living at 555 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, and for several months he had supported himself by washing dishes in a restaurant in Flatbush avenue. He lived with Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, who also were on the vaudeville stage. Wilson said last night that he and Schuler formerly worked together as Mack and Wilson, comedians, and that when he got married Schuler left him to do his yodeling act.

The truck that killed Schuler was owned by James Butler, Inc., grocers, and was driven by William Tobin of 754 Fifth street, Brooklyn. Tobin was held in $5,000 bail on a charge of homicide.

Three other persons were killed in automobile accidents yesterday and at least a half dozen hurt seriously. The first man killed was Henry J. Couchman, 35, of 27 West Nineteenth street, who was run down at Sixteenth street and Fourth avenue by an automobile driven by Louis Mendell, 32, of 206 Lafayette street, Brooklyn. David Engles, a lawyer of 206 West Eighty-ninth street, was a passenger. Mendell was arrested.

Abraham Wolnitz, 16, a freshman in the Boys High School, Heywood street and Broadway, Brooklyn, and living at 184 Park place, Brooklyn, was killed when a motor truck on which he was riding struck another truck at McDonough street and Lewis avenue.

James Montemmaro, 11, of 624 President street, Brooklyn, was crossing Fifth avenue at President street when he was struck and knocked down by an automobile owned by the Prudential Film Company of 729 Seventh avenue, Manhattan, and driven by Joseph Rosenstein of 523 West 134th street. The boy died before an ambulance surgeon arrived.

Max Auerbach, 46, of 23 West Eleventh street, a drug store owner, was knocked down and hurt fatally last night at Ninth street and University place by the automobile of a battalion chief of the Fire Department who was on his way to a fire.

Auerbach was going to the Hotel Lafayette. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital and attended by Dr. Timony, who said he had a fractured skull and could not live.

ROYAL H. WELLER'S SON NOW OFF MISSING LIST

Representative - Elect Reports
Student's Return.

William H. Weller, thirteen-year-old son of Royal H. Weller, Representative-elect of the Twenty-first district, who disappeared Tuesday morning, returned last night to his home in the Vauxhall apartments, 730 Riverside Drive.

The boy is a student at Horace Mann School, Broadway and 120th street. He left home at the usual hour Tuesday morning, but when he failed to return that afternoon his parents learned that he had not been at school that day. A friend told them that he had seen the boy at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and that he was carrying a suitcase. He could not be traced further, and Mr. Weller asked the police to send out a general alarm. Early last night he telephoned to the West 122d street station and requested that the alarm be cancelled, saying his son had returned home. The Wellers were not at home last night and it could not be learned where the boy had been since he left there Tuesday morning. It is understood his father found him downtown through friends.

$6,400 IN CACHE GOES TO BONDING COMPANY

Accused Teller Disclaims
Ownership of Money.

Judge Burt J. Humphrey of the Queens County Court signed an order yesterday directing the Police Department to turn over to the United States Fidelity and Guarantee company of Long Island City the $6,400 found in a laundry hamper in the home of Theodore M. Tobani, Jr., at 6 West Seventy-fifth street. On November 17 Tobani was acquitted of a charge of grand larceny in which the money figured and the question of ownership has been at issue since.

The police contended that the money was part of the $15,000 stolen from the vaults of the Fidelity and Guarantee Company, where Tobani had been a paying teller. Tobani denied ownership of the money and said he did not know how it had come to be in his laundry hamper. After his acquittal the bonding company laid claim to the money and started a civil action to recover. Yesterday the District Attorney and counsel for Tobani signed a stipulation relinquishing all claim to the money.
